The Push All-Ages Tour is coming to the suburbs of Melbourne with some of Australia's biggest artists!

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA - The Push All-Ages Tour is returning this May - bringing live music experiences to young people across outer-suburban and metropolitan Melbourne.

With The Push's previous All-Ages Tour including sold out shows with the likes of Baker Boy, Alex Lahey, and Sycco - the 2023 tour sees a massive new line-up featuring some of Australia's most exciting artists including Thelma Plum, Mallrat, The Terrys, Cub Sport, King Stingray, Jaguar Jonze, Teenage Dads, Teen Jesus and the Jean Teasers, Cry Club, The Vovos, Tia Gostelow, South Summit, and JACOTÉNE.

As a part of the Victorian Government's On The Road Again program, the seven-date tour is being staged and programmed by teams of local young people, through the Victorian Government FReeZA program - a youth development initiative that provides young people with industry skills and experiences in staging events in their local communities.

Local upcoming artists will also have the opportunity to join the line-up through The Push's All-Ages Tour competition, where they can join the stage alongside music legends and soon-to-be contemporaries.

"We're stoked to be bringing the All-Ages Tour back again in 2023. Not only does the tour provide important opportunities for young audiences to experience live music that is safe and affordable, but it gives teams of local young people the chance to develop skills, confidence and networks that have been inaccessible over the past three years." says The Push CEO, Kate Duncan.

Tickets for the All-Ages Tour are $30 (plus booking fees) on sale 4pm, Friday 3 March through Moshtix. Visit thepush.com.au for more info and to buy tickets.

All shows are all-ages, drug, alcohol, smoke and vape-free, fully supervised events.
